The University of New South Wales Law Journal (‘UNSW Law Journal’) is one of Australia’s leading peer-reviewed legal journals and one of the few to be produced entirely by a voluntary student board. The UNSW Law Journal publishes four Issues per year, including General Issues and Part-Thematic Issues.

Submissions

The UNSW Law Journal welcomes original contributions on any topic of legal interest for inclusion in its General Issues. Contributions are also welcome for Part-Thematic Issues, provided they make an original, scholarly contribution to the chosen topic. The UNSW Law Journal does not accept contributions that have either been published previously, either in identical or substantially similar form, or submitted for publication elsewhere.

Articles should be submitted via the submissions page on the UNSW Law Journal website. Please consult the UNSW Law Journal’s website for further information on submission guidelines: <http://unswlawjournal.unsw.edu.au>.

Subscriptions

A subscription to the UNSW Law Journal costs AUD132 per year and includes four Issues. Individual copies of Issues may also be purchased at a cost of AUD44 each.
